Department News

Dr. Keely Muscatell, Assistant Professor of Social Psychology, is the recipient of a Brain and Behavior Research Foundation (BBRF) Young Investigators grant. The BBRF awarded 2020 Young Investigator grants, valued at more than $10.3 million, to 150 of the world's most promising young scientists. The grants, awarded annually, support the work of early career investigators with innovative ideas for groundbreaking neurobiological research. With this grant, Dr. Muscatell will investigate the effects of race-related stress on neural processing and social cognitive functioning. Learn more about her research and the 2020 BBRF Young Investigators online.

Dr. Michael Hallquist, Associate Professor of Clinical and Quantitative Psychology, is the recipient of a 2020 National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH) grant. The NIMH is the largest funder of research on mental disorders in the world and the lead federal agency for research on mental disorders. Dr. Hallquist, along with Drs. Eran Eldar (Hebrew University of Jerusalem) and Alexandre Dombovski (University of Pittsburgh) received a total award of over $5.3 million (over five years) for their project, "Neurocomputational studies of mood-related momentum dynamics linking reward learning, valuation, and responsivity."

Curtis Smith, a Senior Psychology major and Spring 2020 Reznick Scholar, received 1st place in the Undergraduate Category of the Southern Criminal Justice Association Showcase. Curtis, with the guidance of faculty mentor Dr. Patrick Harrison, won for his poster, "The Interactive Effect of Traumatic Brain Injury and Exposure to Violent Offending on Justice-Involved Youth."

News, continued.

Dr. Barbara Fredrickson, Kenan Distinguished Professor of Social Psychology, is the recipient of a NC Policy Collaboratory/Congressional CARES Act Grant. The NC Policy Collaboratory was established in 2016 to utilize and disseminate the research expertise across the UNC system for practical use by state and local government. Under The CARES Act, funds are used in relation to the public health emergency of COVID-19. Dr. Fredrickson received a total award of over $98,00 (over six months) for her project, “To Wear or Not Wear a Face Covering: Understanding Socioemotional Factors that Predict Sustained Adherence to Novel Behaviors for the Prevention of COVID-19.”

Dr. Sara Algoe, Associate Professor of Social Psychology, is the recipient of a John Templeton Foundation grant in collaboration with Duke University. The John Templeton Foundation offers grants to support bold ideas from contrarian thinkers—ideas that cross disciplinary boundaries, challenge conventional assumptions, and fund innovative programs that engage the public. Dr. Algoe received a total award of over $57,000 (over two years) for her project, “On Thanksgiving: How Gratitude to God is Demonstrated, with Consequences for the Grateful Person and Witnesses.”

Dr. Margaret Sheridan, Associate Professor of Clinical Psychology, is the recipient of a 2020 National Institute of Mental Health grant. The NIMH is the largest funder of research on mental disorders in the world and the lead federal agency for research on mental disorders. Dr. Sheridan received a total award of over $3.7 million (over five years) for her project, “Neural Pathways Linking Early Adversity and Preschool Psychopathology to Adolescent Mental Health.”

Dr. Kristen Lindquist, Associate Professor of Social Psychology, Dr. Mitch Prinstein, Van Seters Distinguished Professor of Clinical Psychology, and Dr. Eva Telzer, Associate Professor of Developmental Psychology, are the recipients of a 2020 National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA) grant. NIDA funds research that advances the science on the causes and consequences of drug use and addiction. Drs. Lindquist, Prinstein, and Telzer received a total award of over $3.3 million (over five years) for their project, “Neurobiological Susceptibility of Peer Influence and Drug Use in Adolescence.”

Dr. Kristen Lindquist is the recipient of a 2020 National Science Foundation Grant. The NSF funds research and education in most fields of science and engineering. Dr. Lindquist received a total award of over $468,000 (over three years) for her project, “The Physiological Hypothesis of Affective Aging.”

Dr. Shauna Cooper, Associate Professor of Developmental Psychology, was elected to the Board of Directors for the Council on Contemporary Families. The Council on Contemporary Families is a non-profit, non-partisan organization dedicated to enhancing the national understanding of how and why contemporary families are changing, what needs and challenges they face, and how these needs can best be met. Council members represent a multidisciplinary group of national experts from colleges and universities across the country.

News, continued.

Dr. Viji Sathy, Teaching Professor of Psychology and Neuroscience, was elected to serve on the National Academies of Science, Engineering, and Medicine's Board on Science Education Committee. This committee is part of the National Academies' Response of Higher Education to COVID-19 Resilience and Innovation. This ad-hoc committee will provide U.S. states and districts with guidance about whether and how to safely reopen schools in the 2020-21 school year. The committee will report utilizing evidence from epidemiology, public health, and the social and behavioral sciences.

Dr. Rachel Penton, Teaching Assistant Professor of Psychology and Neuroscience is a 2020 recipient of the UNC Adobe Course Development grant. This program provides funding of $1,250 and a support program for faculty interested in creating course assignments that help develop students' digital media-authoring skills. The program is part of a larger University initiative to promote digital literacy, composition, and communication across the curriculum. Dr. Penton will apply the grant in her NSCI 276 Cellular Electrophysiology Laboratory course this Fall and students in the course will complete a digital medial project while learning to use Adobe software.

Dr. Deborah Jones, Professor of Clinical Psychology, is the awardee of a Zachary Taylor Smith Distinguished Term Professorship effective July 1, 2020 by the UNC College of Arts and Sciences. This professorship recognizes tenured faculty who are making exceptional contributions to undergraduate education at UNC Chapel Hill and is also intended to support and expand undergraduate research contributions across this college. This year, two professorships were awarded to faculty members who are making outstanding contributions to research, scholarship, teaching, and mentoring undergraduate research and are truly committed to expanding undergraduate participation in original inquiry both inside and outside the classroom. Each term professorship in undergraduate education and research has a four-year term and each recipient receives a $6,000 annual salary stipend and a $5,000 annual project fund which may be used to incorporate research components in courses, creating new courses, traveling with undergraduates to professional meetings, or developing programs to increase the numbers of mentors for students.
