Department News

19 Psychology and Neuroscience majors are Fall 2020 initiates of the Alpha of North Carolina Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa. Membership is a recognition of academic excellence achieved during the completion of a liberal arts and sciences undergraduate education. Congratulations to our Fall 2020 inductees: Sarah Ashworth, Nicole Baum, Miranda Black, Adelaide Cairns, Rajeev Dutta, Katherine Fesperman, Andrew Halcomb, Luyan Jia, Heidi Kreis, Jash Mirani, Mara Negrut, Nikhil Rao, Alexandra Reardon, Curtis Smith IV, Claire Staresinic, Rebekah Sullivan, Autumn Tucker, Matthew Wang, and Muhang Yu.

Jessica Goldblum, a graduate student in Developmental Psychology, is a recipient of a North Carolina Translational and Clinical Sciences Institute (NC TraCS) grant. The purpose of the NC TraCS $2K Pilot Program is to support the generation of preliminary data that will enable researchers to compete for external funding. Jessica was awarded $2,000 for her project, "Virtual Assessment of Joint Attention in Young Children with Autism Spectrum Disorder: A Novel Eye Tracking Approach for the New Normal."

Dr. Sikoya Ashburn, a postdoctoral fellow in Cognitive Psychology, is a recipient of a National Institutes of Health Blueprint Diversity Specialized Predoctoral to Postdoctoral Advancement in Neuroscience (D-SPAN) Award. The purpose of this award is to support a defined pathway across career stages with long-term goal of becoming independence neuroscience researchers. Dr. Ashburn received over $352,000 (over four years) for her project, "Structural and Functional Cerebellar-Cerebral Connectivity in Children with ADHD."

News, continued.

Dr. Carol Cheatham, Associate Professor of Developmental Psychology, is a recipient of a National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism (NIAAA) R21 grant. The NIAAA supports and conducts research on the impact of alcohol use on human health and well-being. Dr. Cheatham received over $408,000 (over one year) for her project, "Synergy of Nutrients and the Prevention of Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorders: Effects on Brain Development and Function in a Rat Model."

Dr. Donald Lysle, Kenan Distinguished Professor of Behavioral and Integrative Neuroscience, is a recipient of a R21 grant from the National Institute on Drug Abuse. The R21 grant program supports exploratory and high-risk research projects by providing support for the early and conceptual stages of these projects, which may lead to a major impact on biomedical, behavioral, or clinical mental health research. Dr. Lysle was awarded over $427,000 (over one year) for his project, "Neural Immune Mechanisms of Heroin Withdrawal and Stress."

Departmental Anti-Racism Book Club

Faculty, postdoctoral fellows, graduate students, and staff are invited by the Education and Training Subcommittee to focus personal efforts on individual reading and reflection around racism. Below are recommendations for two books and we ask that you select and read one of these before the beginning of the Spring semester. In Spring, small group discussions will be held to discuss the readings. Mark your calendars to finish reading by January 19, 2021.

So You Want to Talk About Race? by Ikeoma Oluo, 2018. Oluo's highly-praised book covers contemporary racial issues in language that is accessible and easy to follow and provides advice to white people on how to have difficult conversations about race, no matter how uncomfortable it may be. Each chapter title revolves around one contemporary racial issue in America; analysis and personal experience is provided in that same chapter. The book provides valuable insights for those who hope not only to change the systems around them, but also those who hope to change minds and hearts around them. Purchase

How to be an Anti-Racist by Ibram Kendi, 2020. Kendi argues we must be actively anti-racist, because the only other alternative is racism—and that building more equitable systems results in a more just world which is richer and fuller for everyone. He weaves his own personal story of racial experiences, learning and development with discussions of racially-related ideas within history, science, and ethics in an effort to encourage the reader to reflect on ideas of race and power they hold and encounter, where those ideas come from, how they are institutionalized and internalized, and why it is so important to be actively anti-racist. Questions may be directed to Education and Training Subcommittee Chairs, Drs. Donald Baucom (don_baucom@unc.edu) and Kristen Lindquist (kristen.lindquist@unc.edu).

Research Opportunities for Faculty
